The example in my previous post shows how to get an EXE with the correct key using Visual Studio's Project -> Settings (CTRL-SHIFT-D) and selecting the "User Key" option. However, when you open the.exe in notepad, you'll see that there's no key. You can open the.EXE using a binary editor, a hex editor, or a bitwise search engine. That should show you the key. Q: Change the background image based on the selected picker view I would like to change the background image based on the currently selected value. I have three UIPickerView in my application. Now when I select any of the picker view I want the corresponding image to get selected. I tried to set the background image based on the selected value, but it didn't work.

This is how I tried to set the background image. UIPickerView * pv1 =
[self.storyboard.instantiateViewControllerWithIdentifier:@"PV1"]; UIPickerView * pv2 =
[self.storyboard.instantiateViewControllerWithIdentifier:@"PV2"]; UIPickerView *
